Walter von Nessen, 1889-1943

Nessen.

DESIGN IS OF THE ESSENCE.

Sixty some years ago, Walter von Nessen introduced his first important lighting concept—the swing-arm lamp for table, floor and wall applications. The year was 1927. That form should follow function was then on the frontier of design. Von Nessen was among its most perceptive pioneers.

Through the years, our design parameters have not changed. We remain perfectionists whose primary market is the professional who appreciates what sets our products apart.

The von Nessen swing arm concept, as valid today as when introduced in 1927.

With us, performance is the ultimate criterion. Expressions will relate to the times and the materials we fashion. But clean lines and classically pleasing proportions are the invariables. It will test the reader to find executions more straight forward than the signature concepts of our design partners, including Ferdinand Porsche; Gianfranco Frattini; Elizabeth Kauffer; Marc Heinlein; Cristian Diez; Jerome Simon; Shelton, Mindel & Associates; Wooding Design; Tom McHugh; James Long and Mary Helen Pratte.

Our search for superior materials takes us to the quarries of Zaragoza, the marble finishers of Carrara, the glass makers of Murano, the brass mills of Dusseldorf and the looms of Kortrijk. Handheld buffing, polishing and finishing techniques complete the quality formula.

All of these design and fabrication skills may also be brought to bear on your own special problems and client requirements. We will go out of our way to try to accommodate your requests for modifications and adaptations of our luminaires. Please call us and our representatives for details.

“Lola” wall sconce, NW429, ice, James Long design 2006.

In the final analysis, one’s products must speak for themselves. So, upon your advice, this is exactly how we will present them in the pages of this new Nessen reference manual. Simply the facts; clean graphics, unadorned data. Our lamps are created by designers and our clients are, themselves, designers. Surely our catalog should reflect these priorities!

MODIFICATIONS AND SPECIAL CONTRACTS

Nessen will endeavor to fulfill all reasonable and implementable requests for modifications to standard lamps and for contract quantities.

For instance, we can modify the height of a lamp, make a swing-arm longer or shorter, relocate a switch, offer custom enamel paints, use fluorescent instead of incandescent technology, alter shade dimensions and fabrics and use special wiring.

Such accommodations are made for two reasons: to meet specific design requirements or to up- or down-scale features to meet quality and budget considerations on larger orders.

No minimum quantities are required for special orders. Pricing will be determined by the nature of the changes and the quantities involved.
